King Arthur's Wars describes one of the biggest archaeological finds of our times; yet there is nothing new to see. There are secrets hidden in plain sight. We speak English today, because the Anglo-Saxons took over most of post-Roman Britain. How did that happen? There is little evidence: not much archaeology, and even less written history.

King Arthur fought 12 Battles according to Nennius. King Arthur and his Battles. Nennius records that King Arthur fought twelve major battles. The texts of Nennius (AD 796), the Easter Annals, and the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle point to where these battles were geographically, but as in most things to do with King Arthur, there is room for debate as to where events really took place.

One of the great "lost causes" of history is the fall and destruction of Romano-Celtic Britain after the death of Arthur - a tale up there with those of Troy, or the destruction of the Jewish kingdom and its Temple in A.D. 70. Like those heroic failures, the fall of Romano-Celtic Britain inspired a monumental literary tradition, which had a vast impact on world culture down to the present.

In researching this material I found definitively that Arthur was Welsh, Celtic, or Breton. That he fought the Saxons in the north, in the south, or in Wales, around the year 450, or 500, or 525. That he was and wasn't a king, who was or wasn't named Arthur. That he was a figure of imagination and a real person.
