Mindblind Jennifer Roy

My book "MINDBLIND" by Jennifer Roy is not like many books. In this book the main character Nathaniel Clark lives in two worlds, the world with his family and friends and the world of his own Aspie world. Nathaniel was diagnosed with Aspergers syndrome at the age of three.

Mindblind by Jennifer Roy

Jennifer Roy and her husband, Greg, have a remarkable 8-year-old son, Adam, who not only inspired the character of Nathaniel Clark, but also created the "Amazing Race" charts and narrative at the back of MindBlind.

Roy writes with a strong voice and the authenticity of one who knows children with Asperger's, yet Nathaniel's problems and concerns can and should reach a wider audience. The book is comparable in scope and effectiveness to Mark Haddon's The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Nighttime (Doubleday, 2003), yet contains its own unique character and story.

"Jennifer Roy visited our school and gave four well-received presentations to 7th graders. She spoke with compassion about how the idea for writing Mindblind originated and clearly defined Asperger syndrome. She achieved high marks from the students and teachers. She is friendly, accessible and a pleasure to work with."

Mindblind by Jennifer Roy Lynn: There is an irritating new rule about new book reserves at my public library. Well, that is another story but because of that it sometimes it takes me a while to get my hands on a book and that is the case with Mindblind (Marshall Cavendish 2010) I wanted to read this since I a) saw the stunning cover in a review and b) read Michael Cart’s review.
