Book Review | New Crobuzon Series by China Mieville

- China Miéville, 'The Scar' At some point there was an infinite number of possibilities with this novel. This is the follow up to Perdido Street Station, book 2 in the Bas-Lag/New Crobuzon trilogy. There are chapters and lines and threads of this novel that contained amazing prose, brilliant ideas, funky characters, compelling themes, etc.

The Scar (novel) - Wikipedia

New Crobuzon lies about ten miles (16 km) inland from its eastern coast, which borders the Swollen Ocean. Immediately south of New Crobuzon is the Rudewood, beyond which lies the Mendican Hills. North of New Crobuzon, along the coast but separated by the Bezhek Mountains, are the ruins of Perdido Street Station, The Scar, and The Iron Council are the three books set in the Bas-Lag universe featuring New Crobuzon. I agree with woodenrat, the first two are quite a few notches above the third in quality. Two other books of China Mieville that are excellent are The City and the City, and Embassytown.

Bas-Lag - Wikipedia

New Crobuzon is being ripped apart from without and within. War with the shadowy city-state of Tesh and rioting on the streets at home are pushing the teeming metropolis to the brink. In the midst of this turmoil, a mysterious masked figure spurs strange rebellion, while treachery and violence incubate in unexpected places.

The Scar (New Crobuzon Series #2) by China Miéville ...

Another fantastic novel by one of my newly favorite authors, The Scar is the second book set in the world of Bas-Lag (where New Crobuzon happens to be). While there's certainly no need to have read Perdido Street Station to enjoy this book, you would do yourself no favor by forgoing the experience.

The Scar (New Crobuzon, #2) by China Miéville

In almost every way, The Scar is a better book. For me, the real star of PSS was the city of New Crobuzon itself. While The Scar takes place on the same world, it definitely offers more of a story--a journey, both literally and symbolically.
