The Sea, the Sea by Iris Murdoch, Paperback | Barnes & Noble®

The Sea, the Sea, was Iris Murdoch's 19th novel. It was also her fourth to make the Booker shortlist. Naturally, the fact that Murdoch was so often nominated and only triumphant later in her career has been the cause of plenty of speculation, but it's easy to understand why she so often fell at the last hurdle.

The Sea, The Sea (Penguin Twentieth Century Classics ...

The Sea, The Sea has become one of my top five favorite books and Iris Murdoch one of my favorite authors. In The Sea, The Sea, we meet arrogant, snobbish Charles Arrowby, a retired London theatre director. Charles has recently bought a house by the sea where he hopes to finish his pretentious autobiography.

An Object Lesson in Naming Novels: Iris Murdoch's The Sea ...

I loved Murdoch's use of the recurring theme of the ocean which created a solid framework or backbone for the book. The detailed description of the sea, its changing color, light and movement never became tiresome or too much. Instead it grounded the story, filled it with beauty, danger, monsters and destruction. The narration was excellent.

An Object Lesson in Naming Novels: Iris Murdoch's The Sea, The Sea The Novel So Nice They Named It Twice. By Emily Temple. July 15, 2019. First, there's the obvious: the incantatory effect of the repetition, the rush of sibilance, the plain punch of those four syllables. It just sounds good, and any great title should sound good.
