The Kick Them All Out Project began in 2006 to promote a revolutionary voting strategy that offered a simple, practical and doable way for the American people to begin draining the stinking swamp our Congress has become. Since the only direct power we have over Congress is the power to hire and fire at the ballot box, the KTAO Project voting strategy provided a way for us to "actually throw the bums out!"

In the average American home, there are over 300,000 items. [1] That's true even though 1 in 10 Americans (and rising) rent offsite storage [3] and even though the size of the American house has tripled in the past 50 years. [2] Do some math too: the average American home ownership tenure is about 9-10 years, meaning people are accruing 30,000+ items each year to reach the

Refrigerated Food and Power Outages:
When to Save It and When to Throw It Out. As the USDA notes in Keeping Food Safe During an Emergency, your refrigerator will keep food safe for up to 4 hours during a power outage. Keep the door closed as much as possible. Discard refrigerated perishable food such as meat, poultry, fish, eggs, and leftovers after 4 hours without power.

I make it a point not to take personal finance cues from Adam Sandler movies, so I've never attempted the stunt from Big Daddy in which Sandler instructs his son to throw cans of SpaghettiOs on the ground ("dented cans are half-price"). Not only is this a shady method of saving money at the grocery store, it's also probably unsafe; we've all been told not to eat food from severely ...
